1. A Yugoslav armored force school for officers is located at Bela Crkva near the Hungarian frontier. Aside from tactical courses, there is a four-year engineering course upon completion of which officers are given an engineering degree.
 2. The school occupies two large barracks near the airport, and about 3,000 officer students are currently attending a one-year course there. After the first year, the most qualified students are chosen to continue their studies for three additional years.
 3. The school has about sixty tanks of Soviet, United States, Italian and British make, which are used for training. Within the past month several of the new Yugoslav-manufactured I Maj tanks have arrived at the school.
